Clothing Fires Are Out Of Fashion

The American Medical Association has for many years annually warned of the dangers inherent in flammable fabrics. There are many injuries and not a few deaths every year—mostly in the winter—from clothing fires.

This winter something new has been added to this danger—paper clothing.

Paper clothing—mostly women's dresses—is so new that as yet there are few data on the potential burn dangers.

A top government safety official warned recently that people who wear paper clothing risk burning themselves if they wear it near an open flame after it has been laundered, dry-cleaned, or worn in a soaking rain.

The Journal of the American Medical Association reports that approximately 2 million persons annually are burned severely enough to require medical attention, and that 100,000 of these require hospital care. About 2,000 Americans die of burns each year. Far too many of these burn victims are injured when their clothing catches fire.

Whether the garment is paper or cloth, it might ignite if the wearer gets too close to an open flame. It's a temptation to huddle close to a stove or fireplace on a cold morning. It also can be fatal.

Simple firescreens or protective shields can eliminate some of the danger from open flames. Check your home today for such potential hazards. If you find one, correct it promptly.

Using kerosene or a commercial "fire starter" for the fireplace or barbecue grill also has potential hazards. If there are hot coals in the fireplace or grill, the volatile liquid may flare up or explode, especially in a closed room.

Little girls' dresses with flimsy, flaring skirts are obviously a fire hazard. So are flowing robes and night gowns. Small boys in their blue jeans are much safer. But even jeans will flame up if ignited.

If someone's clothing catches fire, roll him on the ground or floor, using a blanket or a rug to smother the flames. If the victim panics and runs, the flames will flare even higher.

Vaccine For German Measles Is Licensed

WASHINGTON

A vaccine described as safe and effective in preventing German measles, a dreaded threat to pregnant women and their unborn babies, was licensed Thursday for the first time anywhere by the Swiss government.

The vaccine is expected to be available for general use in Switzerland within a month. The license was granted to a Belgian subsidiary of the Philadelphia firm of Smith, Kline & French Laboratories—Recherche et Industrie Therapeutiques, RIT.

Spokesmen for RIT told a news conference in Zurich that the vaccine has proved very effective in clinical tests involving 80,000 children and adults in many countries including the United States.

German measles or rubella is a threat to pregnant women at any time, and particularly in epidemic years.

The vaccine licensed by the Swiss Federal Service of Public Hygiene uses a live virus grown in rabbit kidney cultures which was developed at the RIT laboratories in Belgium following isolation of the rubella virus by U.S. investigators in 1962.

Barbeque Fish For Foolproof Flavor

You can recapture that luscious, fresh-from-the-stream fish flavor at home by marinating Booth Frozen Fillets in this special cial sauce before broiling. Perfect patio fare, barbequed fish is also excellent indoors, broiled on the kitchen range. The secret is in the marinade.

BARBEQUED FISH FILLETS
2 pounds Booth Frozen Fillets, Thawed
Marinate for at least 2½ hours at room temperature (72 degrees), turning occasionally
¼ cup ReaLemon bottled lemon juice
6 to 8 peppercorns

½ cup water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 medium onion, chopped
¼ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 dash dill weed
1 dash marjoram
1 dash thyme
Salt to taste

Broil (over charcoal if possible) approximately twenty minutes without turning. Fish is done when it flakes easily. Baste while broiling with rest of marinade.
Makes six servings.

Winning Wayne feed dealers and their wives were honored recently as members of the Allied Mills President's Honor Council (PHC) in ceremonies held in Boca Raton, Florida. Pictured above receiving a plaque and congratulations for an outstanding marketing job are: Mr. and Mrs. Wendal Butts of A. C. Butts & Sons, Fulton, Kentucky. Allied Mills President and Chief Executive Officer Roy E. Folck, Jr., (second from right) confers the honor on the PHC dealership for sales and service it rendered livestock and poultry feeders during 1967-68 fiscal year. Nearly 150 of the Chicago-based agri-business firm's top Wayne feed dealers and their wives from many states were honored similarly. J. E. ## Hotdogs Or Chickendogs? Franks May Be Either Now

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department's decision to let meat producers put up to 15 per cent chicken meat in hot dogs without saying so on the main label—and without public hearings—appears certain to stir up a new round of objections.

Consumers will have 45 days to submit written views, but the department Friday confirmed earlier reports that there will be no hearings on the chickendog proposal.

Unofficial reports prompted one consumer advocate to write Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin last week that the department apparently "intends to be run by the meat lobby—as some have long alleged—with no effort to consult consumer opinion."

The complaint came from the Rev. Robert J. McEwen, a Jesuit priest who is chairman of the economics department at Boston College and president of the Consumer Federation of America.

The chickendog proposal was passed on by the Johnson administration as part of a package plan to modify regulations for federally inspected cooked sausages.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman had proposed that a series of public hearings be held on chickendogs and other recommendations, including limitation of fat in sausage products and other specifications. But Nixon administration officials decided to separate the issues.

Under existing regulations, federally inspected cooked sausages may not contain poultry meat unless it is clearly pointed out in the main label, such as "frankfurters, chicken added."

The new proposal would permit up to 15 per cent poultry meat without bold lettering in the label, but would require it if poultry content exceeds that amount. A full list of ingredients still would be required elsewhere on packages, usually in fine print, to tell consumers what they are buying.

ACHIEVERS DESERVE AWARDS!

When was the last time a member of your civic, social, or business club was recognized for outstanding achievement or service? Whether it was bowling, banking, or a bake-off, good work deserves proper reward.

Awards for significant achievement offer incentive and inspiration to other members of the club as well as to the recipient. An effective way to recognize your members is through a formal organized awards and recognition program.

The Specialty Advertising Association, Chicago, suggests the following guidelines:

— Appoint a committee to evaluate club activities and recommend awards for individual achievement.

— Be sure awards are meaningful. Awards should be presented for achievement above expected performance.

— Present awards at regular, pre-established intervals. Recognition is most effective when timely, and closely related to the achievement.

— Send publicity on awards to local community newspapers. Publicity will build recognition for your organization as well as for the recipient.

— Awards needn't be expensive. Remember, it's the thought that counts.

— Humorous awards for dubious achievement can sometimes be effective when presented without causing embarrassment.

MAJOR POINTS & MINOR, TOO

It's about time: The state legislatures get to work on needed safety legislation, for there is much that needs to be done to halt the growing slaughter on our streets and highways.

The drinking driver is one great menace. Such a person is the biggest reason for enactment of implied consent laws, which make possible alcohol tests of drivers suspected of having imbibed too much.

COTTAGE TOUR

Also available was the highly-praised cottage tour, available for only $15! It provides a first class hotel, three meals and an evening of folk entertainment in a thatched cottage. Surely a bargain!

For those who want a longer tour including the medieval tour and banquet, one is available for $110, beginning in Shannon and ending in Dublin, or the other way around. It is for four days, with rooms in quality hotels, all meals, transportation by motor coach to Adare, Killarney, Macroom, Blarney Castle, Cork, Limerick and Kildare, with sightseeing and entertainment in Dublin.

One of the delights of any visit to Ireland is shopping, not only in the fabulous duty free store at Shannon Airport but also in the shops which have marvelous buys in Irish tweeds, knit sweaters and other goods.

Meanwhile, Killarney is providing a resting spot for this traveler, happily ensconced in one of the finest hotels anywhere, the Great Southern, with a huge fire in the great lobby fireplace and a glass of steaming hot Irish coffee at his elbow. Ah, perfection!

PERSONALITIES: A movie you won't need to see: "The Legend of Lylah Clare", so bad that now they're trying to say it was made that way on purpose... an excellent movie recreating a turbulent period in England's history and well worth seeing is "The Lion in Winter", starring Katharine Hepburn and Peter O'Toole... I like the definition in the Chicago Tribune for waterfowl: Polluted lake... rice cooked in orange juice instead of water is a tasty dish...

HERE AND THERE: Contests proposed for "San Francisco's OWN Olympic Games" by Columnist Herb Caen of The Chronicle: Last Man on Cable Car, Grabbing Bus Seat Before Pregnant Woman, Kite Flying in Candlestick Park and Pigeon Kicking in Union Square... and Herb says you know you're getting old when it comes up rain on the morning you were supposed to play tennis and you're glad... scratch one revolving restaurant: the one Nasser built in Cairo... our favorite, and offering the finest view of any restaurant anywhere, is the one atop the Space Needle in Seattle.

Gov. Ellington Signs Bank Interest Bill

A bill allowing bankers to charge up to 10 per cent on loans was signed into law today by the governor after the state legislature weeded out a troublesome amendment, which some say he would have vetoed.

"I have been assured by banking leaders in the state that this will provide the necessary flexibility and competition in the money market," said Gov. Buford Ellington. "And I have been assured that this does not mean the interest rate is going to 10 per cent."

NASHVILLE. — A bipartisan bill to limit the political activities of state employees faced a vote in the Senate today, while the House postponed until next Wednesday action on the session's first tax bill.

The postponement is designed to let lawmakers work out an amendment to exempt private aircraft from a bill to impose a

Hamilton Bill Designed To Ease Farmers' Burden

Farmers who use their trucks primarily during the harvest season will receive relief from the high cost of license plates if a bill submitted by State Senator Milton Hamilton Jr. is passed by the state legislature, now in session in Nashville.

According to Senator Hamilton, his bill would allow farmers to purchase regular plates for their trucks and then during the harvest season, when their trucks are moving heavy loads of grain to market, they would be permitted to buy a special permit.

He said in the past farmers have been forced to buy the heavier weight plates for trucks they used only 30 days or so during the harvest season. His bill would allow such farmers to buy a 30-day permit at one-twelfth the

Invitation To Car Theft

DETROIT — It was a simple case of auto theft—but two red-faced suburban St. Clair Shores policemen had to admit it was their police car that was stolen and that they had left the car unlocked, the key in the ignition and the motor running.

It all happened while two officers were in a restaurant early today. The police car, with two mounted flasher lights inside the rear window, turned up 40 minutes later—abandoned a half-mile away.

Crane Theft Nearly Causes Electrocution

BURLINGTON, N.C. — Police say that someone who started driving off with a 20-ton crane from a construction site early Friday came only a few feet from possible electrocution.

The crane cable was attached to a beam in an uncompleted building, and this stopped the arm of the crane just short of a high voltage wire.

The crane was found in the middle of a street

4-cent-a-gallon tax on aviation fuel. The $1.5 million proceeds would be earmarked for education.

Rep. Jack Bowman, R-Rockwood, said the measure was intended to tax only fuel used in commercial aircraft, but the amendment was felt necessary to exempt small aircraft.

This is the first tax bill to reach the floor of either house this session and its fate was uncertain. Legislators often have expressed the idea that this is not the year for any new tax for any purpose.

The Hatch Act bill would bar state employees from engaging in political activities during working hours. And it would prohibit the use of state property in political campaigns.

"I think the major need for the legislation is to stop employees from being intimidated or coerced in order to force them to contribute to a certain political candidate or party or force them to attend rallies," Garland said.

Meanwhile, the House Judiciary Committee dealt with what may have been the death blow to a bill aimed at preventing campus disorders. The committee, by an 11-10 vote, killed a motion to send the bill to the floor.

Any attempt to revive the bill will require a two-thirds vote—which would be next to impossible in the badly split committee.

Rep. James White, R-Nashville, is sponsor of the proposal which would require the suspension of a student and the firing of any teacher engaging in "campus disorders." These disorders are defined in the bill and range from rioting to parading without a permit.

Several lawyers charged the bill is unconstitutional because it seeks to regulate not disorders, but peaceful assembly which is guaranteed by the Constitution.

The House State and Local Government Committee recommended approval of a bill by Rep. Charles Howell, R-Nashville, to prohibit unethical conduct on the part of any state, county or city official.

The Senate passed Wednesday and sent to the House bills to: — Raise the maximum weekly workmen's compensation benefit from $42 to $47 and the total disability benefit from $16,000 to $18,800.

— Prohibit any fraudulent use or duplication of credit cards. Among bills introduced were those to:

— Abolish all special license plates.

— Raise the fee for obtaining special license plates for sheriffs, radio operators, volunteer firemen and auxiliary firemen from $1 to $7.

— Raise the nonresident hunting license fee from $15 to $25.

— Authorize the governor to appoint members of his staff to go to the state prisons and assist convicts in preparing petitions for new trials and for writs of habeas corpus.

— Give the commissioner of revenue authority to confiscate contraband beer and to crack down on the delivery of untaxed beer into the state.

The House Finance, Ways and Means Committee has announced plans to hold joint hearings with the Senate committee on Gov. Buford Ellington's $480 million appropriation bill for the next fiscal year. The hearings will begin Monday.

Narvel Seals Seeks Office

Narvel Seals, a partner in the Seals Brothers farming operation and chairman of the Obion County ASC committee for the past five years, today became the third candidate to announce for the office of County Trustee, subject to the Democratic Primary in August.

Mr. Seals said he is resigning as chairman of the Agriculture Stabilization & Conservation (ASC) committee and related organizations in which he now holds membership in order to make the race.

Announcing previously for the office of Trustee were Paul Garigan and Milton Counce. Trustee Earl Thorpe will not be a candidate for re-election.

In making his announcement Mr. Seals, 49, made the following statement:

"When elected, I will serve to the best of my ability in this position of high trust. I feel I am qualified for the position of Obion County Trustee and I would like to take this opportunity to ask for the vote and support of all Obion Countians."

Mr. Seals and his brother, Paul, began farming together in the Walnut Log community in 1947 and have continued their partnership since that time.

Mr. Seals makes his home seven miles south of Union City in the Moffitt community. He and his brother now rent 400 acres of crop land and own a 265-acre farm where they raise cattle.

Mr. Seals was born in Portageville, Mo., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clint Seals. He moved to Dyer County as a child and was graduated from Dyersburg High School in 1957. Following his graduation he farmed with his father.

In 1940, the Seals moved to Samburg and the following year Mr. Seals married the former Miss Laverne Perry of Dyer County. He worked in the shipyards in Evansville, Ind., until entering the Army in 1942. Prior to his discharge in January 1946, Mr. Seals served in the South Pacific theater for 30 months and took part in the New Guinea and Luzon campaigns.

Note In Bottle Travels Long Way

NEW CASTLE, Del. — Chryl Kirlin put a note in an empty bottle and threw it into the Indian River Inlet near here last spring.

Last week she got a letter from a man who said he found it in a small stream in his village—in Austria. It was written on stationery from a hotel in Oetzal and signed Carl D. Bauer.

Dr. Dean Bumpus, an oceanographer at Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institute, said he knew of "no way" the bottle could have ended up in Oetzal, provided it stayed in water all the way.

Board Of Governors Delay May Be Solved

Obion Countians, who almost two years ago voted to change the make-up of the Board of Governors of Obion County General Hospital, may soon see their wishes carried out—but it will take another act of the state legislature to do it.

Sam C. Nailling, employed by Judge Dan McKinnis and the Obion County Quarterly Court to take the case to the State Supreme Court, today said he now believes the original act to be unconstitutional.

However, the long fight to place persons from various occupational fields on the hospital board apparently is about over. State Senator Milton Hamilton said today he will introduce another bill in the legislature next week which will come before the county court for its approval in July.

The new bill, now being prepared by the legislative council service lawyers, will differ from the first only in the fact that it will replace present members of the hospital board only as their term's expire.

The first term to expire is that of board chairman Dwight Blackley of Hornsbeck on July 1. The original act, voted and passed by Obion Countians on May 27, 1967, changed the make-up of the hospital board by specifying that one member must be a clergyman, one from the field of education, one from either the banking profession or industry, three elected at-large and one from the medical profession.

The bill further provided that the person chosen from the medical field must be selected from among three persons nominated by the hospital staff and that the medical representative can serve only a term of one year and cannot succeed himself. All members were to be named by the county court as they have been in the past.

This act would have gone into effect on July 3, 1967 when the county court met. However, attorneys for Mr. Blackley and the Board of Governors of the hospital, enjoined Judge McKinnis and members of the court from acting.

Later, attorneys for Judge McKinnis and the county court asked that the injunction be set aside but Chancellor John T. Gray overruled the demurrer (or injunction) but gave permission to take the appeal to the Supreme Court.

This week Mr. Nailling was preparing to take the case to the Supreme Court when he became convinced that the act is unconstitutional for the reason that it would have thrown all members of the present hospital board out of office before their terms expired.

Mr. Nailling based his opinion on Article II, Section 9 of the constitution as amended in 1953 which states:

"The general assembly shall have no power to pass a special, local or private act having the effect of removing the incumbent from any municipal or county office or abridging the term or altering the salary prior to the end of the term for which such public officer was selected."

State Senator Hamilton said since Obion Countians have already voted their approval on the measure, the new bill will require only a two-thirds vote of the members of the Obion County Quarterly Court to become effective.

The county court is expected to pass this measure and name the first member under its provisions this July.

Present members of the hospital board of governors, and the dates on which their terms expire, are: Dwight Blackley, 1969; Lonnie McCordle, 1970; Horace Reams, 1971; Hayden Phebus, 1972; Harry Smith, 1973; Frank Ray, 1974; and Arch Higby, 1975. All terms expire in the month of July.

ELEPHANT-SIZED FUN FOR KIDS

Most mothers dread the thought of giving a children's party—and small wonder, when you think of how easily a small-fry shindig can turn into bedlam.

One way to make these events easier on yourself and more fun for the kids is to plan a party around a theme that's popular with youngsters, perhaps a children's story, or a TV character. Then tie your decorations in with the theme, plan one or two activities around it—and you've worked out a fun event that's easy to control.

Try a Babar Happiness Party, for example, based on Babar the Elephant, the lovable cartoon character children know from the story books and television. It's particularly timely, since the kids will all be watching the half-hour Babar TV Special on April 21st over NBC-TV network.

To help you with all the fun things you can work into this theme, there's a free Babar party kit available that includes a pin-the-trunk-on-Babar game, ten paper elephant helmets, decals for decoration, a Babar story/coloring book to award as a prize, and a charming oversized Babar poster. There's also a page full of additional ideas on how to make an elephant the life of the party.

NUTRITION FOR ATHLETES

Some athletic coaches — perhaps the vast majority — won't like my saying it. But the truth is, there's a lot of food faddism practiced by athletic coaches in this country.

Trick ideas, old wives' myths, and other nutritional nonsense are hoked up each year, especially for the football and basketball seasons. A great deal of this happens at the high school level. But don't excuse the college and professional sports coaches either.

As a physician, I find it upsetting — and particularly so, when these kinds of ideas are also supported by some team doctors who obviously are shy in their knowledge of the scientific facts of nutrition. To be specific:

No Miracle Foods

There simply are no miracle foods, or food components, or mixtures of special foods that are going to improve an athlete's performance. He needs the same foods that are recommended for everybody else. If he follows the four food groups — milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, enriched or whole wheat breads and cereals — he'll be fine. But he needs them, of course, in greater quantities because he is using up greater amounts of energy at the same time that he is in a period of physical growth that is critical.

Special supplements, wheat germ, tiger's milk — all this sort of thing that some coaches encourage — may have some kind of psychological advantage for a boy. But it also can be dangerous to delude him with notions not based on scientific fact that these foods may have some special effect.

Food On Game Day

I also have a special gripe with coaches about eating on the day of the game. Here again a sort of faddism takes hold and the impression is given that special performance will follow special circumstances. Thus, some coaches give special instructions for eating differently on game days.

Well, certainly a boy should not eat a large meal and immediately rush out on the field of competition. But why not have faith that, especially in the case of football, he can have his regular breakfast and lunch and then at game time perform at his best. He does it on practice days during the week without upsetting his usual meal patterns. If he is good in practice why add further stress to game day by drastically changing when and what he eats before the game.

Some coaches answer that they want to reward and treat their players special on game days.

Closet-Cleaning Strategy: Unclutter with Colorful Coverings

Back in the golden days of radio, it was a good Fibber McGee joke. But, to your family, the catch-all closet is probably something less than funny.

Organization and easily-applied decorative Marvalon coverings can be the key to success in closet strategy.

Finding a home for each closet item is half the job. Making the closet a real eye-catcher is the other side of the coin.

Cluttered, unorganized, and generally unappealing, this closet is often a home's last stronghold against the wonders of modern decorating and organization. What better time is there than spring cleaning to change the look of the closet?

For a really up-to-date closet look, follow the trend of top decorators and let all those containers, shelves and even the small chest take on a wood-grained look. There are wormy walnut, mahogany, walnut, light oak, blue forest, canary wood, and avocado wood wood-grained Marvalon coverings to choose from.

For a contrast you may want to cover several containers with solid color or the new Cane covering, introduced this spring. Inch-by-inch markings on the back of the adhesive-backed coverings make measuring a snap.

Study your family's closet needs and then begin work by locating containers, shelves, and racks to hold every item in place. Storage containers can easily be fashioned from old dress, hat, and gift boxes. Perhaps an old chest can be tucked into a corner of the closet to hold other items. An array of hooks can be attached to a wall area, and shelves can be bracketed up to further organize the closet.

When the job is finished, it will be a pleasure to open that closet door.

Woman's Body Not Identified

CUNNINGHAM, Ky.—Authorities are seeking the identity of a woman whose partially clad body was found in a cornfield south of here Saturday morning. The body was discovered about 10 a.m. on the Miller Deweese farm.

Described as 30-32 years old, 5 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 95-100 pounds, authorities said the woman had brown hair and blue eyes and "probably" was of Mexican descent.

State Police Detective Hugh Page said the body was found lying face up in the plowed field wearing only a pair of panties. Other articles of clothing also were found in a wooded area nearby, Page said.

Page said the woman showed signs of having been beaten, but that the exact cause of death had not been determined. He placed the time of death as "sometime before the rain on Wednesday."

A check of a group of migrant Mexican workers employed in the area revealed no clues on Saturday, according to the detective. He said none of the workers had been reported missing.

The dead woman's fingerprints have been sent to Washington in a further attempt at identification.

The investigation is being conducted by the State Police and the Carlisle County coroner's office.

Banks Increase Interest Rates

The Old & Third National Bank and the Farmers Exchange Bank today increased the interest rate they pay on savings from four to five per cent and established $500 as the minimum deposit to earn the new rate.

The increase in the interest rate of the two banks was the first local reaction to Gov. Buford Ellington's signing Wednesday of a bill which allows Tennessee banks to pay deposits according to federal regulations. Money must be left in the account a full 90 days to earn the five per cent rate. Withdrawals can be made during the first 10 days of January, April, July and October.

Wine Glasses Ideal Gift for Newly-weds

This year's brides will use their wine glasses more often than ever before. Statistics from the wine growers of California indicate that the enjoyment of table wines is climbing dramatically, and the candle-light-and-wine dinners of young adults are a major factor. Wine-tasting parties, popular informal way of entertaining, also contributes to this growth.

All purpose wine glasses — generous in size, moderate in cost — make a thoughtful gift for a young couple. This one glass serves every type of wine correctly. Ideally, the glass should be tulip shaped, short stemmed, of clear glass with a capacity of about nine ounces.

Later on, they may wish to add some of the other glasses traditionally associated with certain wines. For instance, there is a long stemmed glass for Rhine wines; a big balloon glass for enjoyment of a California Burgundy; or a long slender tulip for before-dinner Sherry.

Pictures and descriptions of various glasses are available without charge from Wine, P.O. Box 732, Sausalito, California 94965. Glasses may also be ordered by mail.

NUTRITION FOR ATHLETES

Some athletic coaches — perhaps the vast majority — won't like my saying it. But the truth is, there's a lot of food faddism practiced by athletic coaches in this country.

Trick ideas, old wives' myths, and other nutritional nonsense are hoked up each year, especially for the football and basketball seasons. A great deal of this happens at the high school level. But don't excuse the college and professional sports coaches either.

As a physician, I find it upsetting — and particularly so, when these kinds of ideas are also supported by some team doctors who obviously are shy in their knowledge of the scientific facts of nutrition. To be specific:

No Miracle Foods

There simply are no miracle foods, or food components, or mixtures of special foods that are going to improve an athlete's performance. He needs the same foods that are recommended for everybody else. If he follows the four food groups — milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, enriched or whole wheat breads and cereals — he'll be fine. But he needs them, of course, in greater quantities because he is using up greater amounts of energy at the same time that he is in a period of physical growth that is critical.

Special supplements, wheat germ, tiger's milk — all this sort of thing that some coaches encourage — may have some kind of psychological advantage for a boy. But it also can be dangerous to delude him with notions not based on scientific fact that these foods may have some special effect.

Food On Game Day

I also have a special gripe with coaches about eating on the day of the game. Here again a sort of faddism takes hold and the impression is given that special performance will follow special circumstances. Thus, some coaches give special instructions for eating differently on game days.

Well, certainly a boy should not eat a large meal and immediately rush out on the field of competition. But why not have faith that, especially in the case of football, he can have his regular breakfast and lunch and then at game time perform at his best. He does it on practice days during the week without upsetting his usual meal patterns. If he is good in practice why add further stress to game day by drastically changing when and what he eats before the game.

Some coaches answer that they want to reward and treat their players special on game days.
